POSE OF LARGE WOMAN.

Even a kitten curls itself up on a cushion we say it is cute, but we would laugh at the Newfoundland dog if he tried the same pose. Both animals are lovely and artistic in their own ways.

A large woman should carry herself with regal pose at all times. She should not effect pike bonnets and babish grins or chatter baby talk. It is unbecoming to her and makes her ridiculous.

The small woman no matter how old she may be, can do many things that would be expected of the debutante, and yet it seems to suit her individual style. Her gowns may be youthful, she may even wear pink and blue when she is 40, her hats may boast of chain straps if she likes, and no one will criticize her.

Although the large woman must give up many of these childish but fascinating effects, she will many times outshine her smaller sister if she holds herself erect and assumes the full dignity of lovely womanhood.

What the French Maid Told Marjorie

BY JANE LOWELL.

THE USEFUL HANDKERCHIEF.

"Sometime ago Marie," began Marjorie as she slipped into her aunt's home bright and early one morning, "you told me some decorative and useful things to make out of handkerchiefs. Couldn't you give me a few more hints on the same subject?"

"Why I guess so," answered Marie. "There are many pretty articles you may make out of handkerchiefs. For instance in your room and your guest room why not have pretty bureau scarfs to match the general coloring of the room, made from small handkerchiefs."

These handkerchiefs must be the small, woman's handkerchiefs. Take four and join them together with a lace insertion. Put a row of the insertion about the entire edge after the handkerchiefs are joined together and then whip on to this insertion a lace edge to match.

"The smaller handkerchiefs make pretty little pincushions, lace buttons, eyelets or so in length about the inside of the border. A small bow of the ribbon, which ribbon should be about an inch in width is placed in the end of the cushion."

"Bordered handkerchiefs make nice oversleeves for either the business girl or the little school girl. One handkerchief will make two sleeves. The raw edges which are hemmed neatly, is used to go about the wrist."

"The half of the handkerchief is then folded in two, so that the hemmed edge is at the bottom. A seam is run up the handkerchief so that the sleeve is the right side for the arm. This leaves an ornamental point at the top which can be worn under the arm for further protection to the dress or left in the top merely for decoration."
